The Crisis in American Healthcare

The American healthcare system is facing a number of challenges, including:

- Lack of access to care: Millions of Americans lack health insurance, and even those who do have it often face high costs and limited access to care.

- High costs: Healthcare costs in the United States are much higher than in other developed countries. In 2019, the United States spent $11,582 per person on healthcare, compared to $5,022 in Canada and $4,598 in the United Kingdom.

- Inequality: The American healthcare system is unfair. People with higher incomes have better access to care than those with lower incomes. Racial and ethnic disparities in healthcare are also significant.
