Calel is a moving memoir of a daughter's relationship with her Greek mother. The book explores themes of love, loss, and the power of family.

The author, Maria Margaronis, was born in Greece and immigrated to the United States with her family when she was a child. She grew up in a close-knit Greek community in New York City, and her mother was a central figure in her life.

Calel is a tribute to the author's mother, who passed away in 2017. The book is a moving and honest account of their relationship, from the author's childhood to her mother's final days.

Margaronis writes about her mother's strength, resilience, and love. She also explores the challenges that her mother faced as an immigrant and a woman in a male-dominated society.

Calel is a beautifully written and deeply moving memoir. It is a story of love, loss, and the power of family. It is a book that will stay with readers long after they finish it.
