

Celebrate Cultural Heritage with "My Dadima Wears Sari": A Journey of Love, Tradition, and Empowering Children

In a world where cultural diversity often takes a backseat, it is refreshing to encounter stories that celebrate and uplift different cultures. "My Dadima Wears Sari," written by Kashmira Sheth and illustrated by Vibha Galhotra, is one such story, a vibrant tapestry that weaves together love, tradition, and the power of representation for young children.

The Heartwarming Narrative

The story revolves around a young girl named Tara, who is eager to explore her Indian heritage. Her beloved grandmother, Dadima, becomes her guide, taking her on a journey through the vibrant world of sarees, traditional Indian garments. As Dadima drapes the elegant fabric around Tara, she shares stories of her own childhood, instilling in Tara a sense of pride and connection to her ancestors.
